SPEAKER TO ADDRESS AFRO-AMERICANS IN WORLD AFFAIRS

Dayton, Ohio, January 27, 1981 -- Mary Wade, an associate representative of the Quaker United Nations Office, will speak at the University of Dayton January 29 on the topic, "The United Nations and Role of African-Americans in International Affairs." Beginning at 8 p.m. in room 313 of the Kennedy Union, Wade will discuss the issues before the 35th General Assembly and their effect on the national black community.

Wade, a 1975 UD graduate, has organized various seminars and workshops on the United Nations efforts toward equalizing human rights in Southern Africa, Latin America, and the Carribean. In the February/March premiere issue of Pizaaz-- a bimonthly magazine for professional women that is published in Dayton -- Wade authored an article calling for increased participation by women in the shaping of policies that affect world affairs.

For more information about Wade's address, call the UD Center for Afro-American Affairs, 229-3635.
